Saint Cloud Florida.

FEBRUARY 12 1911.

Editor of the Climax:

From the above heading of this letter you can see I am in the Sunny South in the "Old Soldiers Magic City" or a city of wonder. On July 1st, 1900, there was one small house occupied by a surveying crew to lay off the town. Well they did their work well. To-day there is about one thousand houses as near as one could guess. A brief history of Saint Cloud and its surroundings will be of interest to my old comrade Soldier, who are looking for some happy place to pass the last days of life—Saint Cloud is the place. No use to look further, the town is situated on a boundary of land once owned by the Diston people of Philadelphia, containing thirty-seven thousand acres of land in the center of this tract of land, is the city of Saint Cloud, the town is two miles wide and three miles long, carefully and beautifully laid off. This boundary of land has a beautiful lake of water on each corner or near each corner of the land. The Diston people when they owned the land canalized these lakes all together and canalized the last lake into the St. John's river thus lowering the lakes about six feet, it will be seen that this puts Saint Cloud on the best drained land in Florida. But the work of drainage did not stop here. After the Seminole Land and Investment Co. bought this land there was one strip of low land in the center of town, they sunk a ditch about 34 feet the entire length of over three miles, this with a few shorter ditches, made the town nice and dry. The town is entirely on new land, much of the original forest, the town is a wonder to behold. Let us take a glance at the town as it only eighteen months old and see its growth. There is an artesian well 912 feet furnishing an abundance of pure water, has a National Bank in a dandy brick building, it has a brick post office building and a forty thousand dollar brick hotel modern up-to-date in every respect, has three or four small hotels, has an ice plant making and delivering ice at your door every morning; has Electric light plant for the town and telephones, it has nearly every convenience that other towns 40 and 50 years old have, except paved streets of these have none. Many of the business houses have pavement otherwise the streets are all the original sandy bed the Lord allotted to Florida in her creation. But all parts of the Lord's creation has some beauty and I look at the orange trees full of their precious fruit, the banana trees, the grape fruit, tangerine trees and the pine apple and all kinds of vegetables and flowers growing in abundance. It makes me think how good and the town is going to the front. All this grand improvements have been made without an officer, the town has no officers in it and has never been incorporated yet but will be on the 16th, then there be street grading and many other improvements. Officers elected then see St. Cloud march on to further greatness. The matter of lots is the question many of my comrades will ask about, in reply I say there is a number of lots yet on sale by the Seminole Land and Investment Co. in the town line after you get away from the principal business squares at a reasonable price corner lots are worth $125, lots adjoining the corner are sold at $100, each they are all 25 by 150 feet and are in the desirable part of the city yet to be had there are three hundred lots sold the comrades own that are not improved, as the comrades have not yet come to take them. I should like to see a lot of old Ky. women in the chicken business I am sure—the ordinary chickens hen sells for $1.00, eggs marked cheap at 40 cents a dozen chickens grow up well here strange indeed to me why the people don't raise them. I see very few hogs. They still have the Fla. "Razor Backs" that could drink slop from a bottle, I see some better ones that would have to be slopped from a pan they all could be improved with the old Ky. hog raiser at the pen. I would be glad to write more on the Sunny land but for the present I must stop and give my friends a chance to think.

Very Truly,
A. J. Tharp.

Warning to Railroad Men.

Look out for severe and even dangerous kidney and bladder trouble resulting from years of railroad. Geo. E. Bell, 239 Third St., Fort Wayne, Ind., was many years a conductor on the Nickel Plate. He says: "Twenty years of railroad left my kidneys in terrible condition. There was a continual pain across my back and hips and my kidneys give me much distress, and the action of my bladder was frequent and most painful. I got a supply of Foley's Kidney Pills and the first bottle made a wonderful improvement and four bottles cured me completely. Since being cured I have recommended Foley's Kidney Pills to many my railroad friends." Sold by Stockton & Son.

Disappeared. Cecil, the fifteen year old son of Thos. Jones, the well known citizen of Bledwin, left home last Thursday and all efforts to locate the lad have proved futile. His parents are unable to account for his disappearance and have suffered much worry. The surrounding country has been scoured to see if foot play had overtaken the lad, but no trace of him can be discovered. His parents declare that there has been no straining of the mind and that he is known to have left. It is known that he had about twenty dollars the morning he left. If something is not heard from him this week the police of all surrounding towns will be notified. The lad has always been of a good disposition and has never given his parents cause for alarm by his unruly actions.

Work Begun

That the Winchester Realty Co., has great faith in the future of Richmond, is evidenced by the fact that they have purchased the Shackelford home place on West Main street consisting of about six acres for the price of $11,500 and begun work last week on two streets and the laying off of thirteen building lots. In the company are about a dozen of Winchester's wide awake business men. This will be one of the most beautiful residence additions to the city when completed. Contractor P. H. Moyehaan was awarded the contract for the construction of the streets and is now at work with a force of men. The company proposes to hold a big auction sale of lots as soon as the streets are completed and within the next two years the promise to be many handsome new dwellings go up in this new addition to the city.

Don't : Overlook : Good : Things

The Man who invented the hinged collar button and got rich by it, saw a good thing that had been within six inches of millions of men's eyes for fifty years.

A young chap came into the store Saturday—wished to know the minute he got inside whether we had such and such a suit that was in the window on Monday. No it was not—I knew it he said—a friend of mine has it on.

"I've admired that suit in the window two or three times but I'd neglected it I thought it could be bought for the price he told me he paid." "Got anything like it?" "Why don't you put prices on them in the window?" "Who made the suit anyway?"

FOOD FOR A GENIUS.

Diet That Enabled Mrs. Siddons to Rise to Lady Macbeth.

It is not altogether easy to imagine a Lady Macbeth eating chops. Yet her greatest impersonator got her inspiration from them. If one may rely on an altogether delightful authority: On a certain occasion, writes E. V. Lucas in his book "The Second Post," the painter Haydon paid his butcher, who was re-echoing by expressing great admiration for the artist's painting of "Alexander."

"Quite alive, sir," said the butcher.

"I am glad you think so," said the artist.

"Yes, sir; but, as I have often said to my sister, you could not have painted that picture, sir, if you had not eaten my meat, sir."

"Very true, Mr. Sowerby."

"Ah, sir, I have a fancy for genius, sir."

"Have you, Mr. Sowerby?"

"Yes, sir. Mrs. Siddons, sir, has eaten my meat, sir. Never was such a woman for chops, sir! Ah, sir, she was a wonderful creature."

"She was, Mr. Sowerby."

"Oh, sir, when she used to act that character—but, Lord, such a head, as I say to my sister—that there woman, sir, that murders a king between 'em."

"Oh, Lady Macbeth."

"Ah, sir, that's—Lady Macbeth. I used to get up with the butter behind her carriage when she acted, and I used to see her looking quite wild and all the people quite frightened. 'Ah, my lady,' says I, 'if it wasn't for my meat, though, you wouldn't be able to do that!'"

THE COTTON INDUSTRY.

Alexander Hamilton Foresaw Its Importance In This Country.

There exists in the archives of one of the oldest among the cotton spinning families in northern New Jersey a long letter from a banker of New York addressed to Alexander Hamilton when he was secretary of the treasury. The banker had heard that Hamilton proposed to build a cotton mill at Paterson, N. J. This project the banker disapproved and stated that it was the opinion of all the merchants in New York whom he knew that not in a hundred years would the cotton milling business in the United States employ 200,000.

Hamilton went ahead and planned the industrial town he named Paterson and also planned and financed a company for developing a water power and for financing corporations thereat.

Hamilton's original company, known as the Society For Useful Manufactures, exists to this day at Paterson.

The agent who Hamilton sent to England to buy cotton mill machinery was instructed to have it "knocked down" and placed in small boxes that were to be marked "Bibles For the Moravians of Pennsylvania." It was at that time against the laws of England to ship any kind of industrial machinery out of the kingdom.

Hamilton's brother and two of his agents were caught trying to ship the cotton mill machinery to Paterson, and they were imprisoned for ten months—Cotton.

Waldo and the Picked Peppers.

"Now, dearie," said the nurse, "I want you to learn this nice little poem about 'Peter Piper' picked a peck of picked peppers."

"Shan't," answered the Boston child, much in the manner of other children.

"Oh, naughty, naughty! Why, Waldo, why won't you learn this pretty poem?"

"For two reasons," answered Waldo. "In the first place, the alliteration of the line you quote is so excessive as to destroy any literary finish that such a poem might have. And, in the second place, consider the impossibility of picking peppers which have already been picked. The whole thing is beneath the attention of any intelligent person."—Boston Traveller.

Hunting on Treacherous Soil.

Snipe shooting on an Irish bog is an excellent test of a gunner's skill and enthusiasm. An experienced bog shooter if he finds himself going down throws himself flat on his side or back and at the same time throws his gun to his attendant, generally an unskilled "kossow," who rarely fails to catch it. The sensation of being bogged is very unpleasant, but if a man throws himself on his side or back there is strength enough in the post to support his body.—Forty-Five Years of Sport.

A Great Wheel.

Lazey, in the Isle of Man, is the headquarters of the lead mines of the island. It is celebrated also for its great wheel, which was erected in 1854. Its diameter is seventy-two feet, and so splendidly is it set that there is no oscillation, and it has been going steadily ever since its erection.

DUST IN THE AIR.

Its Influence Upon the Sun's Heat in the Atmosphere.

When the air is luscious thick and hazy it may contain floating dust particles to the number of from 10,000 to 20,000 in every cubic centimeter, while a cubic centimeter of very clear air may contain only from a dozen to a few hundred particles.

An English observer's data indicate that there is a relation between the quantity of dust and the temperature of the air. A great amount of dust, it is thought, increases the temperature in the daytime and checks the fall of temperature at night.

The reason is that the presence of dust serves as an obstruction to the free radiation of heat through the air. The sunbeams pass through very pure, clear air without lending much heat to it, and at night the heat received by the ground during the day readily escapes through the same air, but if the atmosphere is heavily laden with dust the sun's rays are partly arrested by the particles which, becoming heated, in turn warm the air, and in like manner heat radiated from the earth at night is retained to a large extent by the dust in contact with its surface.

Without its atmosphere, which serves as a coverlet to protect it against the fearful cold of space, the surface of the earth would be frozen like that of the airless moon. But the dust, created by reliable observers show that the atmospheric blanket wrapped around our planet varies in its power to retain heat in proportion to the amount of dust particles it contains.—Harper's Weekly.

DEATH BY DROWNING.

Sinking and Rising Depend on the Water in the Lungs.

A group of old salts at Salter's Sunn Harbor were discussing the popular belief that a drowning person must come to the surface of the water three times before he can possibly drown.

"Well," said Captain Tom Morgan, "there is little ground for that supposition. The truth is, a drowning person may sink the first time, never to rise again, or he may, as in the majority of cases, rise three times before he sinks forever."

"But all depends on the quantity of water that he swallows when he sinks and the size of his lungs. The human body in life naturally floats while the lungs are inflated. So long as one keeps his head above the water he can float with very little effort."

"But as soon as the person sinks he gulps down a lot of water. If after he has swallowed this water he has any air left in his lungs he will undoubtedly rise again, and will continue to sink and rise until all the air has been worked out of his lungs."

"In most cases the frightened victim swallows enough water when he sinks the first time to leave him exhausted, but as there is still air left in the lungs he soon finds himself on the surface again. Each time he sinks, however, the supply of air in his lungs grows less until ultimately there is nothing left to support him, when he will drown."—New York Herald.

The Second Man.

A teacher said to her class, "Who was the first man?"

"George Washington," a little boy shouted promptly.

"How do you make out that George Washington was the first man?" said the teacher, smiling indulgently.

"Because," said the little boy, "he was first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

But at this point a larger boy held up his hand. "Well," said the teacher to him, "who do you think was the first man?"

"I don't know what his name was," said the larger boy, "but I know it wasn't George Washington, ma'am, because the history book says George Washington married a widow, so of course there must have been a man ahead of him."—New York Press.

Cities of Refuge.

In the tumultuous days of old, when every man's hand was against every other man and every other man's hand against him, when the principle of "due process of law" was practically unknown and private vengeance was the rule of the day, it was absolutely necessary that there should be some place to which one could fly for safety. Such were the "cities of refuge," of which there were six in Palestine. He who succeeded in reaching such asylum when pursued by his would-be destroyer was safe until his right to protection was judicially decided. In all probability there were cities of refuge in other countries than Palestine.

Hers the Credit.

"There is one thing I like about your husband—he never hurries you when getting ready to go out with him."

"Very little credit is due to him for that, my dear. Whenever I see that I am not likely to be ready in time I simply hide his hat or his gloves and let him hunt for them up and down until I have finished dressing."

His Little Task.

"Very suspicious man, they say."

"Very. Bought a dictionary and went and now he's counting the words to see if it contains as many as the publishers claim."—Washington Herald.

BREATH OF A WOLF.

Here's a Persian Remedy for a Bone Sticks in Your Throat.

A new and ingenious remedy for a bone in the throat will be found in an account of a Persian pilgrimage published under the title of "The Glory of the Shia World." The doctor was Mirza Sedik Khan, chief physician of the vakil ul mulk.

"The patient was brought in on the verge of death, and when his condition had been described the learned physician stroked his long beard and exclaimed: 'By Allah! This case would be hopeless except for me, whose perception is phenomenal. The cause of this man's state is a bone lodged in the throat so firmly that no efforts avail to dislodge it. Therefore either the man must quickly die or the bone must be dissolved, and by what agency? Thanks be to Allah, I am a physician and a Kermani and have observed that wolves, who live on raw meat and bones, never suffer any calamity such as that of the patient. Therefore it is clear to me that the breath of a wolf dissolves bones and that if one breathes down the throat of a patient the bone will be dissolved.'"

"Infinite are the marvels of Allah, for when a wolf belonging to a buffalo man was brought in and breathed on the patient suddenly a fit of choking ensued and the bone, dissolved without doubt by the breath of the wolf, was loosened and extracted."

LOSSES AT MONTE CARLO.

Not at the Gaming Tables, but From Thieves and Pickpockets.

The extent to which pickpockets carry on their calling at Monte Carlo is shown by the experiences of an Englishwoman, the wife of a prominent member of the British colony in Paris. While playing at the gaming tables in the casino she found suddenly that somebody had opened her bag and stolen her purse, which contained several hundred dollars. In a letter to her husband she writes:

"It was about 5 o'clock when they entered my complaint and a description of the purse in the ledger. I returned after 7 o'clock, and the clerk had to turn back three pages to find the entry."

"Surely," I said, "these are not all losses that have occurred since I was here two hours ago?"

"Yes, madame, they are," he replied, "and it's the same every day."

The writer thinks that "losses" is scarcely the right word to use. She relates the case of another Englishwoman who was robbed of $1,000 in the same way as herself. The victim actually caught a woman's hand in her bag and she held on until some detectives arrived, but the thief had already passed the notes to an accomplice, and she was allowed to go.—Cor. New York Sun.

A PERILOUS FEAT.

It Took Nerves of Steel, a Cool Head

The cathedral at Salisbury, England, lifts its spire 401 feet, which is quite a respectable height even in the day of skyscrapers. This spire is topped by a ball, and on the ball stands a cross. From the ground the ball looks to be about the size of an orange, but in reality it is greater than a man's height.

A distinguished American visiting Salisbury when a very young man had a curious and weird adventure on this spire. Workmen were at the time repairing it. The American saw them crawling round the spire and the afternoon light like so many bugs on a bean stalk. The impulse came to him to climb the spire and stand on the horizontal beam of the cross.

Accord- ingly, late in the afternoon, when the workmen had gone, the young man made his way up the stairs to the little window which opened to the work men's staging. To run up the scaffolding to the ball was easy. Then came the slightly more difficult climb to the foot of the cross over the bulging curve of the ball. A short platform gave him footing. He reached up and put his hands on the base of the cross and pulled himself up. To gain the crossarm was merely "shining" up a good sized tree, and soon he stood on the horizontal timber and, reaching up, touched the top of the cross.

After enjoying his moment of triumph he slid to the foot of the cross and with his arms around the ball slipped down over the big bulge of the ball. His feet touched nothing. The little plank from which he had reached up was not there.

Here was a fool-like situation requiring a cool head and a steady eye. He could, of course, not look down. The clinging hold that he had to maintain on the bottom of the cross shortened the reach of his body and made it less than when he stood on the plank and reached up to the cross with his hands. He must drop so that his feet should reach the plank, for he would never be able to pull himself back if he should let himself hang at arms' length, and his feet hung over empty air.

But this young American had a good head, which he immediately put to work. He looked up at the cross and tried to recall exactly the angle at which he had reached for it, to make his memory tell him just how the edge of that square post had appeared. A few inches to the right or to the left meant that he would drop into vacancy. Denying the plank in any back, he strained his eye up the cross and figured his angle of approach. He cautiously wormed himself to the right and made up his mind that here directly under his feet must be the plank. Then he dropped. And he lived to tell the tale.

ANTS THAT COOK.

They Make Dough, Form Cakes and Bake Them in the Sun.

The remarkable habits of the harvester ant have long been known to naturalists. Certain species not only harvest and store in granaries the seeds upon which they feed, but actually plant and cultivate an annual crop of their food seeds.

But now a still more wonderful tale is told of an ant which is common in Dalmatia, Messor barbarus. According to Professor Roger of the well known forestry school near Dresden, this ant not only cuts leaves and gathers seeds, but actually makes bread or biscuits.

The seeds are first sprouted, then carried into the sun and dried, then taken back to the underground chambers, where they are chewed into a dough. The dough is then finally made into tiny cakes, which are baked in the sun, then carefully stored for future use.

From these observations it appears that the art of cookery is not wholly confined to the human race. All cooking is done by the sun, whether in the ripening of fruit or in the baking of bread in a stove. The heat obtained from fuel is simply stored up sunlight set free.

The Arab and the native Mexican speak of ripe fruit as fruit which has been cooked in the sun. The ant has somehow learned the art of sun cooking, the saliva with which it molasses the grains probably taking the place of yeast and sweetening through changes set up by its influence upon starch.—American Medicine.

Positively Rude!

Because she wanted everybody else to know as well as she knew that she had small feet the woman who had offered to lend rubbers to a friend added apologetically, "But they are so big I don't suppose you can keep them on."

"Oh, I guess I can," said the friend seriously.

"Very little credit is due to him for that, my dear. Whenever I see that I am not likely to be ready in time I simply hide his hat or his gloves and let him hunt for them up and down until I have finished dressing."

which you hear and read so much about, we offer a machine that is perfect, absolutely perfect, a machine in which not the smallest detail can be improved.

And in order to get you to realize this superiority as we do, we have decided three things.

First, that we cannot afford to advertise its low price—you would never imagine that you could get so perfect a machine for so little money. To appreciate its price, you must come to the store and see the machine and the FREE 30 day trial. Second, we will offer you the chance to test THE FREE, from treadle to spool pin, in your own home. The best way for you to become enthusiastic over its one point of superiority after another is to actually see it. THE FREE, for 30 days. We want you to keep it in your home—to see it as it is if it were your own—to test it in any way you choose—to compare it with any other sewing machine you know of and then make your decision. Unless you are fully satisfied—more than satisfied—need in back to us—it will not cost you a cent, we will refund all we have paid on it.

But there will be at least 32 reasons why you will want to keep THE FREE when the 30 days are over.

Assigns.

A. P. Gabbard, the well known merchant of Conway, Rockcastle county, filed a deed of assignment last week. Judge John C. Chennault. His liabilities are placed at about $7,000 with assets that will very near cover this amount. The unfortunate failure seems to be the result of a falling off of general merchandise business in that section. Mr. Gabbard's friends here hope for an early settlement with his creditors and his resumption of business.

Hobson.

The Spanish-American War Hero Speaks To Richmond Audience.

Richmond Pearson Hobson, the hero of the Merrimack, whose deed of valor was greatly responsible for the capturing of the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Santiago, delighted a representative audience in this city last Tuesday evening at the Normal School chapel. Mr. Hobson has been a representative in Congress from Alabama for several years.

His subject last Tuesday evening was "The Great Destroyer" in which he brought out the terrible evils of alcoholism and rectified faults, conditions in this country. He is a slow recovering from an illness which made its appearance shortly after the first of the year which was responsible for his absence from many of the sessions of the recent term of the circuit court. Several of his friends have been urging him to become a candidate for the democratic nomination for representative, but as yet he has not made up his mind.

Season Closes.

The basket ball season with the athletic associations of Caldwell High School, Model School and Normal have disbanded for the season. The Model has been victorious in every game played this year, and in many of the contests they showed their superiority over their opponents by a big score. The Caldwell high school team has made a good record this season, having won against all clubs in several contests. The Normal had a very disastrous season, mainly due to a bad start, which could not be overcome, although they worked hard.

Elks Initiate.

Messrs. J. S. Sewell, R. H. McKinney, William Smith, Preston Smith and Sent P. Bush were shown through the lodge of Elks last Friday night, and a big jollification was had by a large number of members after the initiatory work was completed. The banquet in honor of the new members was spread at ten o'clock by Joe and was the feature of the evening's program. There are other applications now in, which will bring out another class before long. During the term of office the past year of Exalted Ruler Robert Terrill, the lodge has taken on new life and many new members have been added, mostly of the younger men.

Eggs! Eggs!

Saturday was one of the biggest egg marketing days in many years in this city. The local commission markets did a land office business and purchased hen eggs, duck eggs and goose eggs in large quantities. Stone Norman, the local street commission man, bought 900 dozen hen eggs, 30 dozen goose eggs and about the same number of duck eggs. He declares it is the biggest lot of duck and goose eggs he has ever bought in one day, and that this season has furnished more of them than he has ever known. Gott Bros. also made record-breaking receipts and report it one of the best days in the history of their business. The firm has shipped over two million eggs to eastern markets this winter.

Bad General.

Last Thursday Clay county officers brought to the Richmond jail, General Marley, who is charged with the killing of a man named Meredith and wife in that county about three weeks ago. The officers found him at Winchester, and so intense is the feeling against him at his home that he would probably be lynched should he be taken back there. Deaf Smith Jones was given the charge of the prisoner. The Manchester officers say this may have been guilty of numerous crimes and is a desperate character. May says he killed the Meredith's in self defense.

The Richmond Lodge of Elks will hold its regular Lodge of Sorrow next Friday evening to commemorate the memory of James C. Lackey, whose death occurred several days ago and who was one of the most popular members of the Richmond lodge.

New Engine.

On account of installing new machinery and the heavy rush of business of late, the Climax has been compelled to put in a new gasoline engine of greater horse power, which was secured from Mr. Ben Hurst, the expert on gasoline engines.

Westward, Ho!

Frank Smith and Jesse Dykes, two young fellows, who will get the best man to see if the West is really what has been said about it, left Sunday for Torrington, Wyoming, where they have taken positions on a big ranch. There are many Madison county people in that vicinity of Wyoming, and they will receive a cordial greeting.

Fans Happy.

The Richmond Base ball club. Just a little more money from a few who have not as yet contributed and the season will be a success beyond a doubt. President Herrington is anxious to get as good financial start and so far he has succeeded well. But there are many people in town and county, who can afford to give from five to twenty-five dollars in order to have the popular game here this year and with every assurance of a pennant winner, they should contribute liberally.

The people of Richmond have shown their public spirit by good contributions and if this season is anything like 1910 in attendance and weather, there will be enough left over at the end to start in 1912 with a very good surplus.

Richmond is the smallest town in the league, but there are more real fans here than most any place. The park trouble has been settled, Mr. R. R. Burnam coming to the aid of the fans and purchased for $3,500 which was three years ago and died in the indebtedness. Mr. Burnam agrees to sell it back to the club at the expiration of one year at the rate of $300, rental for the season of 1911.

President Herrington is looking for a player money who will get the best man for the place. There are now about twenty men owned by the Richmond club, but of course several of these will be either sold, traded or released before the season opens. There are one or two good players, which the president has his eye on and they may be signed by the middle of April. There are one or two places on the team that need strengthening and with these filled, Richmond will put a sure enough winner in the field.

The Normal City Laundry has put in an up-to-date delivery wagon, this move is necessary on account of the increase in business.

Going Now.

The new owners of the Richmond Standard Laundry started last Monday and this institution has begun business again under new management and with bright prospects. The owners and managers, the Messrs. Sharp, are live, energetic young men and are hustling for the business. They had a good supply of work for the Monday wash.

Sold It Here.

James Witt, of Irvine, was here last Friday with one of the best crops of tobacco grown in Estill county this year. Mr. Witt is a prominent resident of the Cow Creek section, one of the most substantial of Estill county, and he says that farmers in Estill county land will grow fine burley tobacco. They will realize a much larger crop this year than last. Many crops from that section have sold on the local breaks this winter for top prices.

Deaths

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Congleton, were called to Frankfort last Friday on the death of Mr. Congleton's uncle, Mr. William Congleton, who had been a resident of the capital city for several years and was one of the leading lumber men of the state. He had been a member of the Frankfort city council since 1897.

After an illness of several weeks duration, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller passed away at her home near Waco last Thursday morning. Deceased was in the seventy-first year of her age and had lived all of her life in Madison county, where her father, the late Wilson Broadus, was a pioneer citizen. Always a devout Christian woman, a member of the Baptist church since childhood, her life was filled with charitable acts and kindly deeds, leaving behind it a record of good memories and the legacy of a loving mother, faithful wife and a devoted friend. Mrs. Miller was twice married, her first husband being John Rayburn, and two children, who preceded her to the grave. She was a kind and generous hearted woman, who with the father, had passed into the great beyond. Besides her husband, James C. Miller, to whom she was married in 1869, she is survived by four children, Mrs. W. E. Blanton, Mrs. W. P. Gilkison, of this county, James Miller, of Wilbur, Washington, and Miss Kate Miller, also of this county. One brother survives, George Broadus, of Richmond. The funeral services were conducted last Friday at the home by Rev. E. H. Burnam, assisted by Elder W. C. A. Young at the grave. The remains were laid to rest in the old family burying ground now situated on the farm of George Blaw.

After a lingering illness of paralysis and a strong fight against death, Mrs. Carrie Harris Broadus died at her home near Speedwell last Saturday. Irate Wife

Makes a Bold Attempt to Cremate Her Husband.

Sara Moore, a colored woman, was arrested by Sheriff McCord last Thursday evening in "Chicago Flats," this city, charged with setting fire to a house near Newby, in which it was supposed her husband was sleeping. Her story is a pathetic one, and it may be that the woman became temporarily insane, which caused her to do this rash deed.

A few days ago the white winged dove of peace left the door and a family quarrel, they again separated, the woman coming to Richmond, where she took lodging with friends.

Thursday afternoon about four o'clock she left the house where she has been stopping here, and walked to her late home near Newby, a distance of about eight miles, where it was supposed her husband was staying, arriving there just after dark. To one or two persons that she met, she declared that she was going to burn the house and her husband also, but they paid no attention to her threats. She was a kind and generous hearted woman, who with the father, had passed into the great beyond. Besides her husband, James C. Miller, to whom she was married in 1869, she is survived by four children, Mrs. W. E. Blanton, Mrs. W. P. Gilkison, of this county, James Miller, of Wilbur, Washington, and Miss Kate Miller, also of this county. One brother survives, George Broadus, of Richmond. Woman's Beauty

Some women retain their beauty to an advanced age. But women, who regularly endure pain, age rapidly, for suffering leaves its lasting marks on them.

Nearly all women suffer more or less with some form of female trouble. It should not be neglected. Avoid the pain—treat yourself at home by taking Cardui, as thousands of other women have done. Begin at once and give Cardui a fair trial.

TAKE CARDUI

It Will Help You

Mrs. Katie Burlison, Goreville, Ill., tried Cardui and writes: "I suffered with female troubles, and was so sick I could not stand on my feet. Finally I began to take Cardui, and soon began to mend. Now I am able to do all my housework and am in much better health than I was before." Try it.

LAXATIVE SENT FREE TO TRY

It may be taken for granted that there is no family that does not sometime need a laxative. If you don't know of a good laxative, or the laxative you are using is losing its effect, we want to call your attention to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which thousands of families are using successfully.

We have scores of letters from mothers, and scores from prominent men saying they are using it personally and giving it to their families. Men like Mr. C. K. Smith of the Traffic Clearing House, Pine Bluff, Ark., and Mr. George B. Turner, a lawyer of Harlan, Ky. The thousands of mothers who use it themselves and give it to their children would take too much time to mention.

The reason they prefer Syrup Pepsin is that it is a mild, gentle laxative.

FIERY DRAGONS.

They Spout Fire From Tongues Barbed With Flame.

Dragons were important animals in ancient and medieval natural history. Until comparatively recent time no scientist ever thought of questioning the existence of this most formidable of beasts. The annals of Winchester for 1177 gravely state that "in this year dragons were seen of many in England." Gesner, professor of natural history at Zurich, gave a detailed description of the dragon, while Andrevaudus in his "History of Serpents and Dragons," published in 1640, devoted fifty pages to the monster.

A good specimen of a dragon would seem to have been a beast about the size of a sheep, incased in a coat of scales which shone like silver. Its legs were scaly, its tail a human torso, a long tail, a pair of batlike wings, four heavily clawed feet and a wolvine head, the jaws of which were armed with very formidable teeth. The tongue was barbed with fire, and fury issued from the monster's mouth, and the head bore a crest. Dragons were the most wicked and vindictive of creatures. They seem always to have been in a fermenting rage and spent the greater portion of their time in rushing up and down the earth destroying everything that came in their path.

The origin of dragons was a disputed point among medieval naturalists. Some maintained that these animals were generated by the heat of India. Others were of opinion that the volcanoes of Ethiopia used to belch forth the monsters. One scientist, John Lee by name, declared the dragon to be a hybrid, a cross between an eagle and a wolf.

PUZZLED ALL AROUND.

A Russian's First Encounter With English in London.

A Russian tells a comical story of his first encounter with the English language.

The day after his arrival in London he made a call on a friend in Park lane and on leaving inscribed in his notebook what he supposed to be the correct address.

The next day, desiring to go to the same place again, he called a cabman and pointed to the address that he had written down. The cabman looked him over, cracked his whip and drove away without him.

This experience being repeated with two or three other cabmen, the Russian turned indignantly to the police, with no better results. One officer would laugh, another would tip his head and make a motion imitating the revolution of a wheel, and so on.

Finally the poor foreigner gave it up and with a great deal of difficulty, recalling the landmarks which he had observed the day before, found his way to his friend's house. Arrived there and in company with one who could understand him, he delivered himself of a severe condemnation of the cabmen and the police of London for their impertinence and discourtesy.

His friend asked for a look at the note which he had written, and the mystery was solved. This was the entry: "Ring the Bell."

The Russian had with great care copied, character for character, the legend on the gatepost, supposing that it indicated the house and street—Pearson's.

The Worth While Person.

Certain qualities go to the making of any human being whom other human beings esteem. Certain ingredients are as necessary to a man as flour and yeast to bread or iron and carbon to steel. You cannot make them any other way. There is a combination of steadiness of purpose, breadth of mind, kindness, wholesome common sense, justice, perhaps a dash of humor, certainly a capacity for the task in hand that produces a worth while person. The combination occurs in every rank of life. You find it as often in the kitchen as in the parlor; often, perhaps, in the field than in the office. The people who are so composed have spiritual length, breadth, thickness; they are people of three dimensions. Everybody feels alike about them.—Atlantic.

The Primitive Man.

"Why, we were at the opera house the other night, and a stage hand removed a table, and Jones yelled 'Supper!'"
